UNIT 2C: Germany, 1918-45

Your second exam is the Germany paper. The results of this paper make up 25% of your final grade.

The exam lasts for 1hr 15mins. You need to answer 5 questions from this paper and there are a total of 50 marks for the answers and 4 further marks available on the last question for Spelling; punctuation and grammar. Very roughly, you should allow 1.5 minutes per mark.

Types of questions you will be asked:

Question 1 (4 marks) This is a compulsory question. You will be asked to show you understand what a source says about the topic you are asked about in the question and from this you will need to make inferences about what you can tell about the focus topic. E.g. The source shows/says/states ‘...’ which tells me that... OR From source A we can learn that... This is shown by...

Question 2 (9 marks) Chose 1 box and explain importance to topic of question giving 3 reasons. Give specific examples of the importance and say how it was of importance. E.g. The SA helped Hitler come to power. The job of the SA was to... (Three / Four specific examples should be given here). They were instrumental in Hitler’s rise to power. They allowed him to take power because... (here you need to explain by giving specific reasons how or in what way they helped Hitler).

Question 3 OR 4 (12 marks) Explain cause and consequence giving 3/4 key features this means you need to talk about at least one more than the prompts given in the question otherwise you will only get half marks. Give the causes and specific examples of them. Give examples of what happened as a result and how it was caused by that. Stick to the time frame of the question. E.g. They signed the Treaty of Versailles / There were many uprisings / Money become worthless... (These key points should be added to with detailed examples of the causes / consequences of them) e.g. the terms of the treaty and the effect it had on German people / their reaction to it. (Link back to the focus of the question) This shows that the Weimar government were unpopular because... / in the way that...

Question 5 a + b OR 6 a + b a (9 marks) You need to make and develop 3 relevant points. Describe ... an important factor/event from the period. Describes the reasons. Why/how something happened. Consider a number of different reasons. Link the reasons together. E.g. They used propaganda... / They appealed to the unemployed... The Wall Street crash happened in... It was... This meant that... It had disastrous effects on the German people for example... and... (Link back to the question) This meant that the Nazi party were able to gain support from... because.... appealed to them.

b (16 marks + 4 SPaG) Judgement question. Consider the importance of 4 of factors / reasons. Develop points with specific examples of the event / action and the consequences of these. Explain how it links to the question topic: *Hitler used the Reichstag Fire to help him gain more power by... Consider viewpoints in a balanced way: this was limited by/because... Reach a supported judgement in the conclusion. E.g. The Reichstag Fire in... was a starting point of Hitler’s final steps to power. During this event... Hitler made use of these facts by... This helped him by... and... so without this... However, it only... so was limited in helping him because...
The German Republic 1918-1929: Was the Weimar Republic doomed from the start?

What effect did the First World War have on Germany?

1919: An ABC of Crisis

abdication of the Kaiser left the government without any authority.

B
lockade by the British Navy meant many Germans were starving.

C
ommunists plotted revolutions like the one in Russia.

defeat in the First World War left many demoralised and bitter.

bret was elected the first president but he had little experience.

F
eikorps units of ex-soldiers attacked democratic politician and institutions.
| Germany in 1900 before the war. | • In 1900 Germany was the leading industrial nation in Europe.
• The Kaiser (Emperor) ruled like a King.
• By 1914 over half of the German population worked in factories but pay and living conditions were low.
• There was a working-class growth in support for the left-wing Socialist Party (SPD) who promised they would improve things.
• They argued that the Kaiser held too much power and the parliament (Reichstag) should have more say. |
| --- | --- |
| The Impact of the War. | • Germany went to war confident of victory in 1914.
• The Allied naval blockade began to create serious shortages of food and Medicines. The food problems were made worse by the 1916-1917 winter and the loss of the potato crop. This forced German civilians to rely on turnips instead in what was the turnip winter.
• By 1917, these shortages began to affect Germany’s armed forces – cuts in navy rations led to a mutiny.
• Coal shortages then led to electricity cuts. By early 1918, many Germans we fed up with the war. Then and influenza epidemic hit, killing many civilians and soldiers.
• Most Germans believed they were fighting a defensive war. Right up until 1918, the Kaiser and the army High Command led people to believe that they were winning the war.
• In October 1918, the German army was near defeat. So the High Command told the Kaiser that Germany could not win the war, and advised him to seek peace terms.
• By November 1918 Germany was a defeated nation. The war had cost 2.4 million German lives.
• It had been funded by loans so prices of goods soared and there was widespread starvation in Germany and a growth in support for the Socialist Party to take over and for the Kaiser to abdicate (give up his throne). |
The Abdication of the Kaiser and creation of a Republic.

When it was clear that Germany was going to be defeated the allies demanded the abdication of the Kaiser before a peace agreement (armistice) would be signed.

All over Germany there were strikes and demonstrations against the war and soldiers were mutinying.

The Allied naval blockade was causing near starvation conditions and Germany was in financial ruin. Despite this the Kaiser refused to give more power to the German Reichstag (parliament).

The leader of the Social Democrats – Friedrich Ebert sent an ultimatum to the Kaiser that unless he abdicated there could be a communist revolution in Germany.

On 9th November there was a general strike in Berlin. Ebert declared a new German Republic with himself as Chancellor.

The Kaiser abdicated on 10th November

The Armistice was signed on 11th November.

Was there really a revolution in Germany in 1918?

1. On 28th October 1918, angry sailors at the Kiel naval base mutinied. Unlike the 1917 mutiny, this one spread quickly.

The sailors were soon joined by soldiers and workers. Imitating the November 1917 revolution in Russia, many began to form workers' and soldiers' soviets (councils).

In a matter if days, revolutionaries took control of several towns. In Bavaria and Saxony, socialists declared their provinces to be independent republics.

As the mutinies and uprisings spread across Germany, the Kaiser still refused to share power with the Reichstag.
2. By November, Berlin was in the hands of the revolutionaries; on 10th November, the Kaiser abdicated.

A centre-left coalition provisional government was then set up under the leadership of Ebert of the Social Democratic Part (SPD). He declared German a democratic republic.

The army generals told the new provisional government that the army could no longer fight so it had no choice but to agree to sign an armistice with the Allies on 11th November.

The new government then arranged for elections in January 1919.

3. However, in Berlin in December, the revolutionary socialists (communists) of the Spartacist League tried to start a workers’ revolution similar to the Russian one in November 1917.

Ebert, under pressure from the army leaders, agreed to call in the army to crush this Spartacist Revolt.

Noske, the SPD Defence Minister, also used a paramilitary group of unemployed right-wing nationalist soldiers (the Freikorps) to put down the rising.

The Freikorps were not just anti-Communist and anti-socialist – they also hated democracy. Thousands of workers were killed during the suppression, including the leaders, Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg, who were captured and then murdered.

Why did the Germans hate the Treaty of Versailles so much?

Key Words

Clause 231 – The paragraph blaming Germany for the war.

Reparations – The money Germany had to pay for damage done during the war.
Terms of the Treaty

The treaty set out 440 Articles detailing Germany's punishment. These were the most important:

Did You Know?

Fritz Haber (the German-Jewish scientist who had invented the use of chlorine gas as a weapon during the First World War) spent many years after the war trying to find a way to extract the gold dissolved in seawater. He hoped it would prove to be a cheap way for Germany to pay off reparations.

May the hand wither that signs this treaty.
Frederick Scheidemann, the German Chancellor (June 1919)
then he resigned rather than agree to the Treaty
How did Germans react to the Treaty?
On 7 May, the victors presented their Treaty to the small German delegation. Count Brockdorff-Rantzau angered the Big Three by giving a long speech criticising the Treaty; then the delegation left and set about countering it. A little later, they sent their counter-proposal based on the Fourteen Points) to the Big Three -- their reply was so good that one of the British delegation said it was much better than the Allies' suggestions, and even Lloyd George wondered for a time if they ought to rethink the treaty. Then the delegation went home. Many Germans wanted to refuse to sign the treaty; some even suggested that they start the war again. So it was with great difficulty that the President got the Reichstag to agree to sign the treaty, and the imperious way the two German representatives were treated when they were forced to sign made things worse.

Did You Know?
The Germans – and many British people – railed against the reparations sum of £6.6 billion as if it were a death-blow to the German nation. But the First World War had cost Britain £6.2 billion, and by the end of the war Britain’s national debt stood at £7 billion, of which £1 billion was owed to the USA and has to be repaid. Yet nobody suggested that Britain’s people were going to starve to death.

</tr>
</tbody>

Did You Know?
Germany did not pay off the reparations bill until 2010. Repayment was interrupted by Hitler during his time in power, which delayed the final pay off to 1996. However, a clause in the agreement said that Germany would have to pay interest on the bill if Germany were ever to reunite, which of course it did in 1990. So the final historic payment of £59m was made on Sunday, 3rd October 2012, ninety-two years after the war ended.
Revision Task

Before completing the task watch this video clip to recap on the Treaty and its terms http://www.bbc.co.uk/schools/gcsebitesize/history/mwh/ir1/thetreaty_video.shtml

The terms of the treaty can be classified into three groups:

- Territorial - provisions that took land away from Germany
- Military - provisions that limited Germany’s armed forces
- Financial and Economic

Use three colours, one for each category and put each of the terms of the treaty into the correct category.

What problems faced the Weimar Government 1919–1923?

Memory Aid: ILRIM

1. Ineffective Constitution
The Weimar Constitution did not create a strong government:
- Article 48 of the constitution gave the President sole power in ‘times of emergency’ – something he took often.
- The system of proportional voting led to 28 parties. This made it virtually impossible to establish a majority in the Reichstag, and led to frequent changes in the government. During 1919-33, there were twenty separate coalition governments and the longest government lasted only two years. This political chaos caused many to lose faith in the new democratic system.
- The German states had too much power and often ignored the government.
- The Army, led by the right-wing General Hans von Seeckt, was not fully under the government’s control. It failed to support government during the Kapp Putsch or the crisis of 1923.
- Many government officials – especially judges – were right-wing and wanted to destroy the government. After the Kapp Putsch, 700 rebels were tried for treason; only 1 went to prison. After the Munich Putsch, Hitler went to prison for only 9 months.

2. Left-wing Rebellions
The Communist KPD hated the new government:
- In Jan 1919, 50,000 Spartacists rebelled in Berlin, led by Rosa Luxemburg and Karl Leibknecht.
- In 1919, Communist Workers’ Councils seized power all over Germany, and a Communist ‘People’s Government’ took power in Bavaria.
- In 1920, after the failure of the Kapp Putsch, a paramilitary group called the Red Army rebelled in the Ruhr.

3. Right-wing terrorism
Many right-wing groups hated the new government for signing the Versailles Treaty (June 1919):
The Kapp Putsch: in March 1920, a Freikorps brigade rebelled against the Treaty, led by Dr Wolfgang Kapp. It took over Berlin and tried to bring back the Kaiser.

Nationalist terrorist groups murdered 356 politicians. In August 1921 Matthias Erzberger, the man who signed the armistice (and therefore a 'November criminal'), was shot. In 1922, they assassinated Walter Rathenau, the SPD foreign minister, because he made a treaty with Russia.

4. Invasion-Inflation: the crisis of 1923
The cause of the trouble was Reparations -- the government paid them by printing more money, causing inflation. In January 1923, Germany failed to make a payment, and France invaded the Ruhr. This humiliated the government, which ordered a general strike, and paid the strikers by printing more money, causing hyperinflation:
- In Berlin on 1 October 1923, soldiers calling themselves Black Reichswehr rebelled, led by Bruno Buchrucker.
- The Rhineland declared independence (21–22 October).
- In Saxony and Thuringia the Communists took power.

5. Munich Putsch
On 8–9 November 1923, Hitler’s Nazis tried to take control of Bavaria (the Munich Putsch).

What was life like during the Great Inflation?

In 1923 Germany couldn’t pay the Reparations. Hyperinflation happens when production can’t keep up with the amount of money there is, so the money keeps losing its value.

</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>¼ mark</td>
<td>5000 Marks</td>

</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Hyperinflation had Three Major Results

1) Wages were paid twice a day before prices went up again.
2) The middle classes lost out as bank savings became worthless.
3) The German Mark became worthless.

Remember that discontent in Germany got worse when the economy went wrong – but there were lots of other factors too.

Summary
The Weimar Republic faced many problems. Perhaps the greatest danger was 'the weakness within' - the constitution gave the President, the states and the army too much power, whilst proportional voting meant that the Reichstag was divided and weak. In 1919-23, extremists on both the Left (especially the Spartacist revolt) and the Right (especially the Kapp Putsch) tried to overthrow the government. The worst crisis occurred in 1923, when the French invaded to try to force Germany to pay reparations. This led to hyperinflation and a number of rebellions (particularly Hitler's Munich Putsch).
Revision Task

Watch this video for a quick review of the information you have just read above.
http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=XEt7PLQpjXY

1. List all the problems facing the Weimar Republic in its early years in order of date. For each problem, decide how big a problem it was.

2. Here is a list of the factors which helped to cause the Weimar government’s problems:
   - Communists
   - Right-wing parties
   - Officials – the judges wanted to destroy it
   - Army
   - Proportional voting
   - Occupation of the Ruhr
   - Printing money

For each factor

   a) Find the times when it caused problems for the government.
   b) How did it create instability in Germany?

3. Looking at all the information, what do you think: Was the Weimar Republic doomed from the start?

How far did the Weimar Republic recover from 1924 to 1929?

Memory Aid: FASS

Although it seemed that the Weimar Republic MUST collapse, it managed to survive. To do this it used any method available to it:

1. Freikorps
   Against the Communists, the SPD Defence Minister, Gustav Noske, used bands of Freikorps. They were right-wing and enjoyed putting down the Communist revolts of 1919–1920.

2. Army
   The Army, led by von Seeckt, was also right-wing, and enjoyed putting down the Communist revolts of 1923.

3. Strikes
   The Kapp Putsch was right-wing, so the Freikorps and Army refused to help the government. However, Ebert appealed to the workers of Berlin (who were left-wing), who went on strike. Berlin came to a standstill and the Putsch collapsed.

Also:
After 1924, a politician named Gustav Stresemann led the government (he became Chancellor in August 1923). At first he had opposed the Weimar Republic, but changed when he realised the alternative was anarchy.

4. Stresemann's Achievements (DIFFERS)
   a. Dawes Plan, 1924
   Stresemann called off the 1923 Ruhr strike and started to pay reparations again – but the American Dawes Plan gave Germany longer to make the payments (and the Young Plan of 1929 reduced the payments).

   b. Inflation controlled, November 1923
   Stresemann called in all the old, worthless marks and burned them. He replaced them with a new Rentenmark (worth 3,000 million old marks).

   c. French leave the Ruhr, April 1924
   Stresemann persuaded the French to leave.

   d. Foreign Affairs
   In 1925, Stresemann signed the Locarno Treaty, agreeing to the loss of Alsace-Lorraine. In 1926, Germany was allowed to join the League of Nations. Germany had become a world power again.

   e. Economic Growth
   Germany borrowed 25,000 million gold marks, mainly from America. This was used to build roads, railways and factories. The economy boomed and led to prosperity. Cultural life also boomed (the Roaring Twenties).

   f. Reforms
   Stresemann introduced reforms to make life better for the working classes - Labour Exchanges (1927) and unemployment pay. Also, 3 million new houses were built.

   g. Strength at the Centre
   Stresemann arranged a 'Great Coalition' of the moderate pro-democracy parties (based around the SDP, the Centre party and Stresemann's own 'German people's Party', the DVP). United together, they were able to resist the criticism from smaller extremist parties, and in this way, he overcame the effects of proportional representation - the government had enough members of the Reichstag supporting it to pass the laws it needed.

Germany had begun to Recover – but Depended on US Money
Life was beginning to look better for Germany thanks to the work of Stresemann. But he died in October 1929, just before the disaster of the Wall Street Crash – a massive stock market crash in the USA which started a global economic depression. The plans he had agreed would only work if the USA had enough money to keep lending to Germany – but now it didn’t. Things were suddenly going to get worse again.

What can you tell about Weimar Germany from its culture?

Cultural Flowering - The 'Roaring twenties'

The 1920s became in Germany a time of real cultural creativity, with developments in Architecture, Art, Books, Films and Cabaret.

Famous names of this period include:
- the Bauhaus school of architecture, founded by Walter Gropius.
- the artist Paul Klee.
- the singer and film star Marlene Dietrich
- the artist Otto Dix (famous for his harsh paintings of World War One trenches).
- the novelist Erich Maria Remarque, who wrote the anti-war novel All Quiet on the Western Front.

1) Germany’s capital Berlin became a centre for culture under the Weimar Republic.
2) There were advances in art, architecture, music and literature. German films were successful – e.g. ‘Metropolis’ directed by Fritz Lang.
3) Some developments were bold and new, like the drama of Bertholt Brecht. The Bauhaus School of design was highly influential.
4) The Weimar Republic encouraged new ways of critical thinking at places like Frankfurt University.
5) Not everyone approved of these cultural changes – the cabaret culture in Berlin was seen as immoral by some. The culture of the Weimar Republic didn’t survive under the Nazis...

It was nearly all okay...

The 1920s were a tough decade in Germany, but Stresemann seemed to have the problems sorted.

Summary
The republic survived the crises of 1919-23 by using the right-wing army and Freikorps units to crush the Communists, and getting the help of the left-wing unions to crush the Kapp Putsch.

Stresemann, and American money (the Dawes Plan) led to a period of prosperity which saw a cultural flowering in Germany.

Hyper-inflation affected the German people in different ways. Draw a set of scales under the title ‘Hyper-inflation.’ Write the negative effects of hyper-inflation on one side and the positive effects on the other side. Which side had the most points?
Hitler’s rise to power: How was Hitler able to dominate Germany by 1934?

How was Hitler able to become Chancellor in 1933?

How did Hitler become leader of the Nazis?

1. Start
The German Workers’ Party, led by Anton Drexler, was formed in 1919. Hitler joined and soon became leader. His speeches gave people scapegoats to blame for Germany’s problems:
- The Allies.
- The Versailles Treaty and the ‘November Criminals’ (the politicians who signed it).
- The Communists, and:
- The Jews.

- Hitler fought in WW1 and was employed afterwards by the German Army as a propaganda agent. His job was to go to political meetings where a chance encounter with the German Workers Party (DAP) changed his life.
- Hitler joined the Party in 1920 and put together the 25 point programme with the leader Anton Drexler.
- The Party was renamed the National Socialist German Workers Party (Nazi for short).
- By 1921 Hitler’s skills had led him to be made leader.
- The party became more aggressive with an emphasis on discipline and loyalty to the Leader.
- Hitler founded the Sturmabteilung (SA) – a brown-shirted paramilitary organisation
- The SA attracted ex-soldiers and members of the Friekorps who hated communists and wanted to intimidate them
- The swastika became the symbol of the Party

Points from the Twenty-Five Point Programme, 1920
- Unite all German-speaking people.
- Abolish the Treaty of Versailles and end reparations.
- Share all profits made by profiteers during the war.
- From a strong central government with unrestricted authority.
- Take over land and colonies in Eastern Europe to feed Germany’s population.

Memory Aid: A good way to remember these points is to think of them as:

Uncle’s Apple Pie Smells Lovely

- Unite
- Abolish
- Profit

The Munich Putsch: A turning point?

What happened?

- In 1923 Adolf Hitler and his Nazi party staged an attempted Putsch in Munich. They felt the time was right because of the right-ing atmosphere caused by the French occupation of the Ruhr.
- The SA burst in on a meeting of the Bavarian government
- and Hitler declared himself leader.
- Hitler planned to march on Berlin the next day and take over the German government.
- But Von Seisser and Von Lussow changed their minds and informed the Bavarian police.
- The Nazis were met with armed resistance and 16 were killed.
- Hitler was arrested and put on trial for treason.

Why was it a turning point for the Nazis?

- Hitler used the trial to put forward his ideas. He portrayed himself as a patriot (loyal to his country) who wanted the best for Germany.
- He was able to use the trial as a publicity opportunity for the Nazis.
- He was given a very lenient sentence – only 5 years. He only served 9 months.
- Whilst in prison he wrote Mein Kampf which outlined his ideas for Germany and became the bible of the Nazi movement.
- He realised in Prison that he would have to take power legally through the ‘ballot’ not the ‘bullot’

How did the Nazis change their tactics between 1924 and 1929?

1. Elections and decline
After the failure of the Munich Putsch, Hitler decided that he would have to get power by being elected, rather than by rebellion. However, he was banned from speaking until 1928. The prosperity of the Stressemann years, also, meant that the Nazi’s message became less appealing and the party lost support.

2. Re-organising the Party
In this period, however, Hitler set about reorganising the Party, he had made a decision in prison that he would now try to gain power through legal and democratic methods. He put in place many of the things which helped it take power after 1928:

- He reduced the number of Stormtroopers (SA) and set up the SS, a personal bodyguard fanatically loyal to himself.
- He set up a network of local parties. He merged with other right-wing parties, then took them over.
- He set up the Hitler Youth, which attracted young people to the party.
- He put Josef Goebbels in charge of propaganda. Goebbels and Hitler believed that the best way to get the support of the masses was by appealing to their feelings rather than by argument. They waged a propaganda campaign using posters, leaflets, radio and film, and organised rallies.
- He cultivated the support of wealthy businessmen promising them that, if he came to power, he would destroy Communism and the Trade Unions. This gave him the finance to run his campaigns.

Hitler’s financiers

Many industrials bankrolled the Nazis, including allegedly:

- Hjalmar Schacht, Head of the Reichsbank, organised fund-raising parties for Hitler.
- Fritz von Thyssen, the German steel businessman
- Alfred Krupp, the owner of Krupp steel firm
- Emil Kirdorf, the coal businessman
- IG Faben, the German chemicals firm, gave half the funds for the 1933 elections
- The German car firm Opel (a subsidiary of General Motors)

And many foreign firms including:

- Henry Ford of Ford Motors. Hitler borrowed passages from Ford’s book The International Jew to use in Mein Kampf and had a picture of Ford on the wall of his office.
- Union Banking Corporation, New York (George Bush’s great-grandfather was president of the Corporation)
- WA Harriman and Co., the American shipping and railway company (George Bush’s grandfather was vice-president)
- Irene du Pont, head of the American firm General Motors; he advocated the creation of a super-race by spinal injections to enhance children of ‘pure’ blood.

Summary

The Nazis grew out of a small right-wing party, which Hitler took over after 1919. He developed a Twenty-Five Point Programme based on hatred, and built up a paramilitary group (the SA) to defend his meetings and attack other parties.

The Nazis appealed to a wide range of people, but especially the 'middling' sort of people, and the party grew rapidly in the years of crisis 1919-1923.

After the disaster of the Munich Putsch, and during the prosperity of the Stresemann years, however, support for the Nazis fell. During this time Hitler believed that he could be elected to power. He used these years to develop and strengthen the party's organisation.

Why was Hitler invited to become Chancellor?

Memory Aid: LIMP PAPER

The story of why Hitler came to power is about the reasons why the German people lost their senses and allowed a vicious madman to come to power. What could have brought this about?

All the following were present from the 1920s:

1. Long-term bitterness
   Deep anger about the First World War and the Treaty of Versailles created an underlying bitterness to which Hitler’s viciousness and expansionism appealed, so they gave him support.

2. Ineffective Constitution
   Weaknesses in the Constitution crippled the government. In fact, there were many people in Germany who wanted a return to dictatorship. When the crisis came in 1929–1933 – there was no one who was prepared or able to fight to stop Hitler.

3. Money
   The financial support of wealthy businessmen gave Hitler the money to run his propaganda and election campaigns.

4. Propaganda
   Nazi propaganda persuaded the German masses to believe that the Jews were to blame and that Hitler was their last hope.

5. Programme
   Hitler promised everybody something, so they supported him.

6. Attacks on other parties
   The Stormtroopers attacked Jews and people who opposed Hitler. Many opponents kept quiet simply because they were scared of being murdered – and, if they were, the judges simply let the Stormtroopers go free (see point 2).

7. Personal Qualities
   Hitler was a brilliant speaker, and his eyes had a peculiar power over people. He was a good organiser and politician. He was a driven, unstable man, who believed that he had been called by God to become dictator of Germany and rule the world. This kept him going when other people might have given up. His self-belief persuaded people to believe in him.

After 1929, however, two short-term factors brought Hitler to power:

8. Economic Depression
   After the Wall Street Crash of 1929, the US called in its loans to Germany, and the German economy collapsed. The Number of unemployed grew; people starved on the streets. In the crisis, people wanted someone to blame, and looked to extreme solutions – Hitler offered them both, and Nazi success in the elections grew.
   Germans turned to Nazism because they were desperate. The number of Nazi seats in the Reichstag rose from 12 in 1928 to 230 in July 1932.
9. Recruited by Hindenburg
In November 1932 elections the Nazis again failed to get a majority of seats in the Reichstag. Their share of the vote fell – from 230 seats to only 196. Hitler contemplated suicide. But then he was rescued by Hindenburg.
Franz von Papen (a friend of Hindenburg) was Chancellor, but he could not get enough support in the Reichstag. Hindenburg and von Papen were having to govern by emergency decree under Article 48 of the Constitution. They offered Hitler the post of vice-Chancellor if he promised to support them.
Hitler refused – he demanded to be made Chancellor. So Von Papen and Hindenburg took a risk. On 30 January 1933 Hindenburg made Hitler Chancellor. He thought he could control Hitler – how wrong he was. In the end, Hitler did not TAKE power at all – he was given it.

Summary
Hitler’s rise to power was based upon long-term factors - resentment in the German people, the weakness of the Weimar system - which he exploited through propaganda (paid for by his rich, Communist-fearing backers), the terror of his stormtroopers, and the brilliance of his speeches. During the ‘roaring twenties’ Germans ignored this vicious little man with his programme of hatred. But when the Great Depression ruined their lives, they voted for him in increasing numbers. Needing support, and thinking he could control Hitler, President Hindenburg made the mistake in January 1933 of giving Hitler the post of Chancellor.

How did Hitler consolidate his power in 1933 and 1934?

There were eight steps to Hitler becoming dictator

Memory Aid: Rigged German Election Leads To Psychopath Nazi Fuhrer

1 Reichstag Fire - 27 Feb 1933
The Reichstag (the German Parliament) burned down. A Dutch Communist named van der Lubbe was caught red-handed with matches and fire-lighting materials. Hitler used it as an excuse to arrest many of his Communist opponents, and as a major platform in his election campaign of March 1933. The fire was so convenient that many people at the time claimed that the Nazis had burned it down, and then just blamed the Communists. Modern historians, however, tend to believe that van der Lubbe did cause the fire, and that Hitler just took advantage of it.

2 General Election - 5 March 1933
Hitler held a general election, appealing to the German people to give him a clear mandate. Only 44% of the people voted Nazi, which did not give him a majority in the Reichstag, so Hitler arrested the 81 Communist deputies (which did give him a majority).
Goering become Speaker of the Reichstag.

3 Enabling Act - 23 March 1933
The Reichstag voted to give Hitler the power to make his own laws. Nazi stormtroopers stopped opposition deputies going in, and beat up anyone who dared to speak against it.
The Enabling Act made Hitler the dictator of Germany, with power to do anything he liked - legally.

4 Local government - 26 April 1933
The Nazis took over local government and the police. The Nazis started to replace anti-Nazi teachers and University professors. Hitler set up the Gestapo (the secret police) and encouraged Germans to report opponents and 'grumblers'. Tens of thousands of Jews, Communists, Protestants, Jehovah's Witnesses, gypsies, homosexuals, alcoholics and prostitutes were arrested and sent to concentration camps for 'crimes' as small as writing anti-Nazi graffiti, possessing a banned book, or saying that business was bad.

5 Trade Unions banned - 2 May 1933
The Trade Unions offices were closed, their money confiscated, and their leaders put in prison. In their place, Hitler put the German Labour Front which reduced workers' pay and took away the right to strike.

6 Political Parties banned - 14 July 1933
The Law against the Formation of Parties declared the Nazi Party the only political party in Germany. All other parties were banned, and their leaders were put in prison.

7 Night of the Long Knives - 30 June 1934
The SA were the thugs who Hitler had used to help him come to power. They had defended his meetings, and attacked opponents. By 1934 there were more than a million of them. Historians have often wondered why Hitler turned on the SA. But Hitler was in power in 1934, and there was no opposition left - the SA were an embarrassment, not an advantage. Also, Rohm, the leader of the SA, was talking about a Socialist revolution and about taking over the army. On the night of 30 June 1934 - codeword 'Hummingbird' - Hitler ordered the SS to kill more than 400 SA men.

8 Führer - 19 August 1934
When Hindenburg died, Hitler took over the office of President and leader of the army (the soldiers had to swear to die for Adolf Hitler personally). Hitler called himself 'Fuhrer'.

How effectively did the Nazis control Germany from 1933 to 1939?

Memory Aid: Overdo The Power You Worthless Ranting Rogue

1 One-Party State
The Enabling Act (23 March 1933) made Hitler the all-powerful Fuhrer of Germany. The Law against the Formation of Parties (14 July 1933) declared the Nazi Party the only political party in Germany. It was an offence to belong to another Party. All other parties were banned, and their leaders were put in prison. Nazi Party members, however, got the best jobs, better houses and special privileges. Many businessmen joined the Nazi Party purely to get orders.

2 Terror
The Nazis took over local government and the police. On 26 April 1933, Hitler set up the Gestapo (the secret police) and the SS, and encouraged Germans to report opponents and 'grumblers'. Tens of thousands of Jews, Communists, gypsies, homosexuals, alcoholics and prostitutes were arrested and sent to concentration camps for 'crimes' as small as writing anti-Nazi graffiti, possessing a banned book, or saying that business was bad. On the Night of the Long Knives (13 June 1934) Hitler used his legal power to assassinate all his opponents within the Nazi Party.

3 Propaganda
The German people were subjected to continual propaganda, under the control of Josef Goebbels. It was the cult of personality - everything was organised to make Germans permanently grateful to Adolf Hitler. Germans were made to feel part of a great and successful movement - in this respect the 1936 Olympic Games were a propaganda coup. The Nazis used the most up-to-date technology to get their message across.
4 Youth
'When an opponent declares, 'I will not come over to your side', I calmly say, 'Your child belongs to us already'. The Nazis replaced anti-Nazi teachers and University professors, and school lessons included hidden indoctrination - requiring children to calculate how much mentally disabled people cost the state, or to criticize the racial features of Jewish people. German boys were required to attend the Hitler Youth, which mixed exciting activities, war-games and Nazi indoctrination. German girls went to the BDM and learned how to be good mothers, and to love Hitler.

5 Workforce
Hitler banned all Trade Unions on 2 May 1933. Their offices were closed, their money confiscated, and their leaders put in prison. In their place, Hitler put the German Labour Front which reduced workers' pay and took away the right to strike. The National Labour Service sent men on public works programmes. To keep the workers happy, the Nazis set up the Strength through Joy movement, which offered good workers picnics, free trips to the cinema and (for the very few) free holidays.

6 Religion
Hitler signed a Concordat with the Pope, agreeing to leave the Roman Catholic Church alone if it stayed out of politics - so most Catholics were happy to accept the Nazi regime. Protestants and Jehovah's Witnesses - if they opposed the Nazis - were sent to concentration camps.

7 Racism
The Nazi regime was from the start based on anti-semitism. The Racial Purity Law (15 September 1935) took away German citizenship from the Jews, and forbade sex between Germans and Jews. Other key dates include Kristallnacht (9-10 November 1938) and the Wansee Conference (January 1942). Many Germans approved of this racism.

Summary
Within a one-party state, Hitler used terror to keep power, underpinned by propaganda and indoctrination of the young. There were special measures to keep the workers happy. Hitler signed a Concordat with the Pope, which stopped Catholics opposing him, and he persecuted the Jews (which many Germans approved of).

What was it like to live in Nazi Germany 1933-1939?

Memory Aid: NOW YOU

1 Nazi Party Members
- Were especially happy - they got all the best houses, preferential treatment, good jobs in the government and power over other people.

2 Ordinary people
For ordinary people, life was good, and many Germans even today look back and remember the years before 1939 as happy years:
- Nazi economic policies gave full employment (work programmes/ Strength through Joy), prosperity and financial security - many observers stated that there seemed to be no poverty in Germany,
- The Strength through Joy programme (KdF) gave some people fun and holidays.
- The 'Beauty of Work' movement (SdA) gave people pride in what they were doing.
- Law and order (few people locked their doors),
- Autobahns improved transport,
- Frequent ceremonies, rallies, colour and excitement,
- Nazi propaganda gave people hope,
- Nazi racial philosophy gave people self-belief
- Trust in Adolf Hitler gave a sense of security (one German woman told the American reporter Nora Wall: 'He is my mother and my father. He keeps me safe from all harm."

There were few drawbacks:
- Wages fell, and strikers could be shot - the Nazis worked closely with the businessmen to make sure that the workforce were as controlled as possible.
- Loss of personal freedoms (eg freedom of speech).
- All culture had to be German - eg music had to be Beethoven or Wagner or German folk songs - or Nazi - eg all actors had to be members of the Nazi party/ only books by approved authors could be read.

3 Women
The Nazis were very male-dominated and anti-feminist. Nazi philosophy idealised the role of women as child-bearer and creator of the family:
- The Law for the Encouragement of Marriage gave newly-wed couples a loan of 1000 marks, and allowed them to keep 250 marks for each child they had.
- Mothers who had more than 8 children were given a gold medal.
- But not all women were happy with the Nazi regime:
- Job-discrimination against women was encouraged. Women doctors, teachers and civil servants were forced to give up their careers.
- Women were never allowed to serve in the armed forces - even during the war.

4 Youth
Most German young people were happy:
- Nazi culture was very youth-oriented.
• The HJ provided exciting activities for young boys.
• The HJ and the BDM treated young men and women as though they were special, and told then they had knew more than their parents.
• Many parents were frightened that their children would report them to the Gestapo, which gave young people a power that they enjoyed.

But not all young people were happy with the Nazi regime:
SOME girls were unhappy with the emphasis on the three Cs (Church, children, cooker).
Girls who were regarded as true Aryan girls were sent off to special camps where they were bred (like farm animals) with selected 'Aryan' boys.
Towards the end of the war, youth gangs such as the Eidelweiss Pirates grew up, rejecting the HJ and Nazi youth culture, drinking and dancing to American jazz and 'swing' music.
In Cologne in 1944 they sheltered army deserters and even attacked the Gestapo.
If they were caught, they were hanged.

5 Opponents
The Nazi's used 'fear and horror' against anyone who disapproved of their regime:
• Hitler banned all Trade Unions on 2 May 1933. Their offices were closed, their money confiscated, and their leaders put in prison.
• Communists were put into concentration camps or killed.
• Many Protestant pastors such as Dietrich Bonhoffer were persecuted and executed.
• Each block of flats had a 'staircase ruler' who reported grumblers to the police - they were arrested and either murdered, or sent to concentration camps.
• Children were encouraged to report their parents to the Gestapo if they criticized Hitler or the Nazi party.

But remember that:
• Many Germans welcomed this because it brought political stability after the Weimar years.

6 Untermensch
The Nazi regime despised many groups which it thought were racially or socially inferior (untermensch = subhuman) - people they called the 'germs of destruction'.
Groups which were persecuted and killed included:
• Jews, such as Anne Frank, whom the Germans systematically persecuted, were forced into walled ghettos, put into concentration camps, and used for medical experiments. In the end the Nazis devised the Final Solution of genocide - it was the Holocaust.
• Gypsies were treated almost as badly as the Jews - 85% of Germany's gypsies were killed.
• Black people were sterilized and killed.
• 5000 mentally disabled babies were killed 1939-45.
• 72,000 mentally ill patients were killed 1939-41.
• Physically disabled people and families with hereditary illness were sometimes sterilized. 300,000 men and women were sterilized 1934-45.
• Some deaf people were sterilised and put to death.
• Beggars, homosexuals, prostitutes, alcoholics, pacifists, hooligans and criminals were also regarded as anti-social, and they were put in concentration camps.

But note that:
• Many Germans approved of this - or at least turned a blind eye. 'Gestapo-terror was everywhere. Anyone who spoke up was killed or put into a concentration camp. You should not forget also that MANY GERMANS HID JEWS.
Another point you should not forget is, people could not see pictures like the one below. All they could see was Nazi propaganda which of course had an influence on the people's minds.

Source F
Children in concentration camps who had been used for medical experiments.

Summary
The key here is to understand that the Nazi state affected different people in different ways. For the majority of people, in fact, life was good - that is why they turned a blind eye to the fact that - for groups which were not accepted by the Nazi state - life was horrific.

What was the impact of the Second World War on Nazi Germany?

In 1943 and 1944 there were several different groups plotting to kill Hitler. This is the story of the attempt in July 1944 – the closest any plotters came to succeeding.

Why did the army leaders try to kill Hitler?
You might expect that Jews and members of other groups persecuted by the Nazis would be the first to plot against Hitler. However, the most serious attempt on his life came from within the ranks of the army. Hitler had always had his critics in the army, but while the war seemed to be going his way – in fact Germany had enjoyed enormous success – they kept quiet. There was an undercover group which worked with Dietrich Bonhoeffer to topple Hitler.

However, by 1943 the war was going disastrously wrong for Germany and for the first time opposition to Hitler within the army became significant.

In 1944 opposition centred on a group led by General Ludwig Beck and a civilian conservative politician, Dr Carl Goerdeler. They backed plans by Count von Stauffenberg to assassinate Hitler.

Why did von Stauffenberg want to kill Hitler?
In the 1930s von Stauffenberg had been a Nazi supporter. He had welcomed the Nazis as the only group who could eliminate the Communists. During the war Colonel von Stauffenberg fought in France, Russia and north Africa. In 1942 he was seriously wounded and lost his left eye, his right arm and two fingers of his left hand. The suffering of the German army in Russia and the brutality of the SS finally pushed him to plot to kill Hitler.

Operation Valkyrie
Von Stauffenberg prepared ‘Operation Valkyrie’. The plan was to use two bombs in a briefcase to kill Hitler and then seize control of Berlin using the army. The problem was how to get close to Hitler. On 26th December 1943 von Stauffenberg was summoned to the daily conference at Hitler’s headquarters at Rastenburg, hidden deep in a forest in eastern Germany. Von Stauffenberg placed a time bomb in his briefcase but at the last minute Hitler decided to spend the Christmas holiday elsewhere.

In June 1944 von Stauffenberg was appointed chief of Staff to General Fromm, the Commander-in-Chief of the Home Army. This meant that von Stauffenberg would have regular access to Hitler. The plotting continued throughout 1944, but without success:

11th July 1944: Von Stauffenberg took a bomb with him to a military conference in Bavaria but his fellow plotters told him not to go ahead with the assassination attempt as they also wanted to kill Himmler who was not there.

15th July: Von Stauffenberg attended another conference at Rastenburg but Hitler left early, before the bomb could be primed.
17th July: Hitler called for the arrest of Carl Goerdeler, a key figure in the plot. He managed to avoid capture, but time was running out for the plotters.

20th July: Von Stauffenberg was to attend another military conference at Rastenburg. Historians are not sure what happened after the events of this conference. However, it is likely that:

Von Stauffenberg’s fellow plotters in Berlin failed to act quickly enough and seize Berlin. Whether they were informed that Hitler was dead or still alive is not known for certain. When von Stauffenberg arrived in Berlin very little had been done to put operation Valkyrie into effect; troops had not been mobilised, and radio, telephone and telegraph networks had not been seized. Von Stauffenberg and Beck tried to seize control of the city. They sent troops to seize key sites and arrested army leaders who would not cooperate, but by 9p.m. the plot had failed. Back at Rastenburg Hitler warned “I will crush and destroy the criminals who have tried to oppose me. I’ll put their wives and children in concentration camps and show them no mercy.” Von Stauffenberg, Beck and some of the other plotters were quickly executed. Hitler had his revenge – nearly 5000 of his opponents were killed by shooting, hanging, garrotting or torture.

The Treatment of the Jews between 1939-1945
Before the Second World War the persecution of the Jews and other minorities had begun however, after 1939 the level of persecution was stepped up.

1933: Jewish and Aryan children were forbidden to play together. Jews were banned from certain jobs: They couldn’t be judges, teachers, civil servants or lawyers.

1935: Nuremberg Laws. Jews could not be German citizens and could not marry Aryans.

1938: Jews were banned from being doctors, from running their own business and from going to state schools, cinemas and swimming pools. In this same, Kristallnacht occurred – in retaliation for a German diplomat being shot by a Jewish student, Nazi leaders encouraged their supporters to attack and smash up Jewish homes and shops. In the following months many Jews were arrested and sent to concentration camps.

1939: Jews had to be in their homes after nightfall. They had to hand over any jewellery, gold or silver to the police.

1939-1942: The SS Einsatzgruppen squads rounded up Jews in occupied territories and shot them.

1941: Jews were sent to overcrowded ghettos in major cities such as Warsaw. Many Jews died of starvation and disease in these ghettos.

1942: The ‘Final Solution’ is put into action. Mass killing of the Jews in concentration camps begins.

1945: The Second World War ends and Concentration camps are liberated by the allies.
The ‘Final Solution’

What was it?
As more countries came under German occupation during the Second World War, the Nazis realised their methods of solving the ‘Jewish Problem’ (killing Jews) with the Einsatzgruppen and the use of ghettos was inefficient. In 1942, at the Wannsee Conference, top Nazi leaders decided to build special camps to do this. This would be the ‘Final Solution’ to the ‘Jewish Problem’.

Where?
The Nazis built camps in Germany and other occupied countries Treblinka and Auschwitz were two of the most well-known death camps.

How did they do it?
When the Nazis took over a country, they drew up a list of Jews and then and transported them to the camps. On arrival, Nazi doctors decided who was fit enough to work and who was to go straight to the gas chambers. Up to 2000 people at once could be killed in a gas chamber.

What was the outcome?
At the end of the Second World War, the Nazis had murdered around 6 million Jews and other minorities and around 4 million Russian prisoners.

Revision Task
Using the timeline and the information above, draw a graph to sum up how the Nazi treatment of the Jews changed from 1933 to 1945. Add notes to your graph to help you remember the important events.

Key words

Anti-semitism - Hatred of the Jews.

Aryan – Nazi term for a non-Jewish German, for someone of supposedly ‘pure’ Germanic stock. Correctly used, the term Aryan means a member of the peoples who speak an Indo-European language.

Censorship – examination by authority (e.g. state) of books, newspapers, plays, broadcasts, films, etc. Also, the suppression of anything considered irreligious, obscene or against the state. Under the Kaiser, censorship had been strict; the Weimar government was liberal, allowing artists free expression; the Nazis censored every aspect of German life on a scale never known before.

Chancellor – in Germany, the chief minister in the government.

Constitution – the rules by which a state is governed.

Demobilise – to disband troops, particularly after a war.

Dictatorship – one-party state, governed by an absolute ruler; the opposite to democracy, where the people choose the government and opposing views are tolerated.

Elite – a select, privileged group.

Euthanasia – the bringing about of death to relieve suffering. The Nazis secretly carried out a policy of compulsory ‘euthanasia’, by cruel and in humane methods, to kill mentally and physically handicapped people.

Fuhrer – Leader; the title adopted by Adolf Hitler.

Genocide – deliberate extermination of a whole race or nation.

Gleichschaltung – co-ordination. The Nazis used the word for their policy of controlling all organisations, at every level of society.

Hyperinflation – rapidly accelerating inflation where prices rise ten – or even a hundred-fold in a single month.

Kaiser – the German emperor.

Lebensraum – living space. The ‘need’ of the German people for living space was Hitler’s justification for his conquest of other countries.

Plebiscite – a vote by all the people on an important issue: for example, a change to the constitution.

Putsch – sudden armed uprising, a political revolt.

Reich – the German empire.

Reichstag – the German Parliament.

Reparations – compensation for war damage demanded by the Allied powers after Germany’s defeat in the First World War.
SA – Abbreviation for Sturm-Abteilung.

SS – Abbreviation for Schutz-Staffel, ‘protection squad’. Originally the private bodyguard for Hitler and other Nazi leaders, the SS later became the main instrument of terror in Nazi Germany.

Totalitarian – a state in which every aspect of people’s lives is controlled and monitored by those in power.

Volk – people; in particular, the German people.

Wall Street Crash – In 1929, share prices fell disastrously on the New York stock exchange (known as Wall Street from its location). It was followed by a worldwide economic collapse and the Depression of the 1930s.
Test your knowledge

Once you have revised try this test without notes or do it in parts once you have revised a section. To make sure you feel confident try the test three times. After each test go back and revise the sections you were less sure of. Then try again and see if you can get all of the answers correct.

The human brain retains information in the long term if you keep seeing it, writing it and saying it so try to write all of these out on cards with the answers on the back and keep going over them 10-15 minutes each day – this will ensure they stick in your brain.
